INTERCULTURAL COMMUNICATION

Are you interested in communication in diverse cultural environments?

We will help you prepare for the global future.

- Explore communication in a mix of cultures
- Develop a well-grounded appreciation for differences of race, ethnicity, class, and gender
- Study the impact of global media on the world economy
- Learn practical skills for success in understanding others
- Gain global perspectives and improve your awareness of diversity in U.S.-American society

In our increasingly complex and fast-paced global environment, it is important to have a basic understanding of differences of race, ethnicity, class, and gender. U.S.-American society.

Our Intercultural Communication specialization focuses on applying intercultural communication theory and research to everyday encounters with individuals from different cultural backgrounds.

Intercultural Communication Specialization Requirements: 15 credit hours

- Required Courses (15 credit hours):
  - ASBI 215
  - ANTH 202
  - HIST 300
  - JRN 100

Required Communication Studies Academic Work:

- Communication Studies Major Requirements: 41-44 credit hours
  - Required Core Courses, 9 credit hours
  - Communication Theory, 3 credit hours
  - Communication Skills, 3 hours of public communication selected from 221, 325, 526 or 317 and 3 hours of intercultural communication selected from 262, 377, or 363

Communication Studies Minor Requirements:

A minor in communication studies consists of a minimum of 8 credit hours in addition to Communication Studies 101, which must include 12 credit hours at the 200 or 300 level.

*From 2015-2016 Undergraduate Catalog